Salt Governorate gets JD 190,000 allocation

Ministers, public meet in Salt to air ideas on development

SALT, Sept. 12 (Petra) — The government has earmarked an allocation of JD 190,000 for Salt Governorate to help it carry out its development projects, Prime Minister Mudar Badran announced here today.

The governorate's problems and needs. Meetings such as this one will certainly enhance the spirit of democracy and strengthen the ties between citizens and government, Mr. Khatib said. The governor submitted a working paper to the meeting, containing the governorate's requests for urgently needed public services. Also addressing the meeting was Salt Mayor Abdullah Nsour, who said that the city's needs are twofold — including the need for ways to preserve the city's landmarks, and at the same time that for necessary public services, ways of dealing with the current expansion of the city and providing the new districts with services.

Speaking at an open meeting attended by cabinet members and notable citizens of the governorate, Mr. Badran said that out of the allocated sum, JD 100,000 will go to Salt Municipality; JD 30,000 to other municipalities in the governorate; JD 15,000 to the Baqa'a refugee camp; JD 15,000 for mosques; JD 15,000 for charitable societies; and JD 15,000 for establishing sports clubs in the governorate. At the meeting held at the Salt community college, the prime minister called for effective public participation in the development of towns and villages. He also expressed his appreciation of a proposal by Salt's citizens for a law governing reconstruction of Salt, drawing on resources to be provided by the city's wealthy citizens. Inspired by this idea, the government has promulgated a draft law — the "Law for the Reconstruction of Cities and Municipalities" — which will go before the National Consultative Council for approval, the prime minister said.

Haig briefs Fahd on AWACS deal as Reagan fails to win opposition

MALAGA, Spain, Sept. 12 (R) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig talked privately with vacationing Saudi Crown Prince Fahd today during a stop in his three-nation European tour, which later took him to Yugoslavia. State Department spokesman Dean Fischer told reporters that Mr. Haig and Prince Fahd "very probably" discussed the sale to Saudi Arabia of advanced radar aircraft, the recent Washington visit of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and the situation in Lebanon. The official Saudi Press Agency said Prince Fahd and Mr. Haig reviewed U.S.-Saudi relations and political issues with the Palestinian question and Lebanon at the top of the agenda. The agency said Prince Fahd explained his eight-point Middle East peace formula during the meeting at his coastal villa near Malaga. Prince Fahd last month outlined eight principles to end the Arab-Israeli conflict, including the establishment of a Palestinian state with Jerusalem as its capital and the right of all countries in the region to live in peace. He urged the United States to change its policy on the Middle East and recognize the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO). The agency said Prince Fahd accepted an invitation to visit Washington but said no date had been fixed.

Opposition still strong for AWACS Meanwhile, President Reagan has failed to persuade the main congressional opponent of U.S. plans to sell radar planes to Saudi Arabia to drop his campaign. Republican Sen. Robert Packwood, who says that 44 of the 100 U.S. senators support him, told reporters that a meeting with Mr. Reagan did not change his mind. The sale of the five radar planes and other military equipment to Saudi Arabia is also opposed by Israel which claims the deal would threaten its security. Two influential members of the Senate Armed Services Committee, John Tower and John Stennis, supported Mr. Reagan and said the sale was in the U.S. national interest. A majority vote in both houses of Congress is needed to veto delivery of the planes. Sen. Packwood accused Saudi Arabia of financing the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) and added: "We have had the Saudis do everything they can in my mind to wreck the (Middle East) peace process."

Khomeini vows revenge for aide's death as chest-beating mourners attend burial

BEIRUT, Sept. 12 (A.P.) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today accused "lackeys of the Great Satan, criminal America" of masterminding the assassination of his personal representative in Iran's northwestern city of Tabriz and vowed revenge, Tehran Radio reported. The 81-year-old revolutionary patriarch also replaced the commander of Iran's air force, and a government spokesman said elections to replace the slain president, Mohammad Ali Raja'i could be held before the end of this month, according to the state-run radio. Ayatollah Khomeini's vengeance oath was made in a radio message to the nation as his personal representative, Ayatollah Assadollah Madani, who was the Friday prayer leader of Tabriz, was buried. Tehran Radio said thousands of chest-beating mourners led by senior government officials and parliament members marched in the funeral procession held for 67-year-old Madani, one of Ayatollah Khomeini's most trusted aides. On Friday a suicide commando approached Ayatollah Madani as he was delivering the sermon in Tabriz's Namaz Square and then set off a grenade strapped on his waist in the midst of a praying crowd estimated at between 600 and 700. Ayatollah Madani, the unidentified assailant and six worshippers were killed and 15 others wounded by official counts. But a viewer who saw a film footage of the blast's aftermath on Tehran's state television Friday night told the Associated Press the casualty toll appeared to be considerably heavier. "The people, with an unshakable will, will take revenge for this latest crime of the vicious hypocrites," Ayatollah Khomeini said in the radio message that was monitored in Beirut. "May God's eternal disgrace and curse befall the lackeys of the Great Satan, the criminal America, which thinks that with such conspiracies... it can weaken the revolutionary will of the Iranian nation." In an unexplained move, Ayatollah Khomeini today removed Col. Javad Fakouri from his post as commander of the air force and replaced him with the vice commander, Col. Mohammad Moinepor, according to Tehran Radio. The change came 24 hours after Ayatollah Khomeini named a new commander for his Islamic revolutionary guards with instruction to seek closer cooperation with the rest of the nation's security branches to check the unremitting wave of anti-government assassinations.

Nabavi rejects Bani-Sadr's offer Mr. Behzad Nabavi, minister of state for executive affairs, rejected in a news conference in Tehran today an offer made by ex-president Abol Hassan Bani-Sadr to call off the bombing and assassination campaign if the government stopped mass execution of Mujahedeen-e-Khalq guerrillas. "Of course, I don't have any respect for Bani-Sadr's word," Mr. Nabavi said. "We cannot make a deal. We cannot prevent the execution of a killer... America takes the life of Rajai and (slain Prime Minister Mohammad) Bahaonar, trapping youths into committing assassinations." The interior ministry announced a three-day period, beginning today, for aspirants to fill the presidency in the forthcoming elections. Iran's council of guardians then will determine who from the candidates was qualified to run before a final date is set for nationwide balloting. Mr. Nabavi said the elections might take place in late September.

Saudi Arabia reported concerned about Israeli build up near borders

KUWAIT, Sept. 12 (A.P.) — Saudi Arabia has protested to Washington about the stationing of Israeli warplanes in areas near the kingdom, a Kuwaiti newspaper has claimed. Citing unnamed Saudi sources, the newspaper Al Qabas said the Saudi government lodged a protest with the United States government about the buildup of U.S. built F-15 and F-16 jet fighters near the kingdom's territory. It said the Saudi protest note demanded clarifications, underscoring what is described as Saudi deep concern over U.S. plans to turn Israel into an "arsenal of sophisticated U.S. arms and a storage spot for stockpiling crude oil to be used by the American fleet in the region." The paper quoted Saudi sources as saying Riyadh was upset about the eventuality of its oil being transferred to Israel which would use it to attack Arab countries. "The Saudis have asked the Reagan administration for assurances that Israel will not attack the U.S. Airborne Warning and Control System aircraft that Washington will supply to the kingdom," the paper said. No confirmation to the newspaper report was available in the Saudi capital. "Saudi Arabia is determined to prevent any violation of its borders," the paper quoted the Saudi note to U.S. as saying.

PLO forces fortified in South Lebanon

BEIRUT, Sept. 12 (R) — The Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) says it has reinforced its positions in southern Lebanon with armoured cars. The deployment yesterday followed an allegation by PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat on Thursday that Israel was preparing another big attack in the area. The move was given rare publicity and Beirut newspapers today carried pictures of commandos from Mr. Arafat's mainstream group, Fatah, manning the columns of trucks and armoured vehicles. The PLO did not say how many men were involved. In July Israel mounted a two-week series of ground, naval and air attacks against Palestinian camps in Lebanon. The conflict was halted by a ceasefire on July 24. Dayan predicts Israeli-Egyptian ties will break down NEW YORK, Sept. 12 (R) — Former Israeli foreign minister Moshe Dayan predicted today that friendly relations between Israel and Egypt would wither next year after Israel returns the Sinai Peninsula to Egypt. Mr. Dayan, who played a major role in negotiation leading to Egyptian-Israeli peace agreements, said: "Egypt will get in line with the other countries (the Arab nations in conflict with Israel)... the Egyptian cannot cut himself from the rest of the Arab World." Mr. Dayan, who led Israel's forces in the wars of 1967 and 1973 and later was foreign minister for Prime Minister Menachem Begin, was here to promote a new book. He predicted that cultural exchanges between Egypt and Israel would stop next year after the Israeli Sinai withdrawal.

Turks protest in Hanover against human rights violations

HANOVER, West Germany, Sept. 12 (R) — Turks today tore down an information stand set up outside the Turkish consulate-general in Hanover to draw attention to alleged human rights violations in their country, a police spokesman said. The human rights organisation Amnesty International, which put up the stand to mark a year of military rule in Turkey, needed police protection to set it up again, a member of the organisation said. Turkish consulate officials, who had protested to the police against the stand, denied allegations by Amnesty that they had helped pull it down.

BUCHAREST, Romania, Sept. 12 (A.P.) — The emir of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah, arrived here today on an official visit at the invitation of Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu, the official Agerpres news agency reported. No details on topics to be discussed were revealed in a preview, that welcomed the distinguished visitor and praised the good bilateral ties. Romania has, for some years, been purchasing crude oil from Middle Eastern producers in the face of its dwindling domestic reserves, and Romania's further oil needs are likely to be on the agenda of Mr. Ceausescu's talks with Sheikh Jaber. The emir of Kuwait, who earlier visited Bulgaria, was also scheduled to travel to Hungary and non-aligned Yugoslavia during his East European tour.

New U.K. tour operator finds Jordan a natural

By a Jordan Times Staff Reporter

The recent news about restrictions on travel to the West Bank, beginning from October, did not deter Jasmin. "It is a rather sad move, deliberately aimed at denying Alia access to the pilgrimage market, and can only cause distress and extra charges to mostly elderly pilgrims, who nevertheless will travel," was how Mr. Smith reacted to the difficulties such restrictions might cause, if indeed they are implemented in October.

One interesting aspect of tourism to Jordan which Jasmin reports is the demand from nearby countries with large U.K. work forces, among whom husbands find Jordan an ideal holiday country to which their wives and family can come and meet up in Amman or Aqaba, for a holiday together.

"Our agent in Amman (International Traders), and I have had a long and very close association over the years," was the answer Mr. Smith gave when asked how British people living in Jordan could find out more about bringing their families to Jordan on holiday.

On a more lighthearted note, Mr. Smith denied in his soft Scottish burr that his daughter's second name — Petra — had anything to do with the "rose-red city." "Believe it or not, it was to please my mother-in-law whose name was Petranella!" he said.

Where children learn to say 'boom' before 'mama'

EDICAL STAFF in refugee camps say that stinian children have been parly affected by the increased tension in mon over the past few months. peated shelling and other military action by all air forces and Lebanese irregular militia included many registered Palestine refugees, cially in the southern part of the country. re renewed fighting placed an extra burden on United Nations Relief and Works Agency for stine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) in ring its relief, health and education services.

'Children cry at sight of boats'

IE FIRST word the children in the camp usu- learn is "mama", but often it is "boom" use they are so frightened of the aircraft that ver the camp, and of the shelling and bomb- according to Eva Bergholtz, a Swedish doc- toring at a clinic in Rashidieh refugee camp, Tyre, the southernmost city of Lebanon. ashidieh is particularly vulnerable", she "because it can be attacked both from the air rom the sea. Children here cry when they see or planes. When the shelling starts, they are just like frightened birds."

Rashidieh camp is one of the Palestine refugee camps in Lebanon which has been hardest hit. Since 1977, the camp has been shelled or bombed about 500 times; more than 6,000 bombs have fallen on it and scores of huts have been destroyed. Dozens of refugees have been killed and hundreds wounded in the past few years.

Dr. Saleh Huweidi, a Palestine refugee medical officer at the Rashidieh UNRWA clinic, agrees with his Swedish colleague in believing that children are the most affected by the hostilities: "When they are asked to draw pictures, what they draw are planes, gunboats and bombs. The constant danger is imprinted in their minds."

Babies born in bomb shelters

THE ATTACKS and the continuing threat to lives have had other serious consequences for the health of the refugees. Dr. Huweidi says: "Many of the camp inhabitants have been wounded and sent for emergency treatment to Al Buss hospital in Tyre. We later do the dressings here at the clinic. Many patients have had amputations; several are blind. All the inhabitants are used to going to the bomb shelters, where they often spend the whole night.

"In winter, the shelters are cold and wet, and the refugees catch influenza and pneumonia. In summer, they are hot and full of mosquitos and flies, and the refugees catch gastro-intestinal and skin diseases. Since 1978, 360 children have been born in bomb shelters."

Dr. Huweidi underlines, however, that the nutritional state of the children is generally good. He says UNRWA feeding centres are particularly appreciated at a time of increasing poverty for the refugee population living in the south: "Tyre is today one of the poorest areas of Lebanon. Men looking for work generally find only seasonal jobs in agriculture, for industry has been hard hit by the hostilities and building, for instance, is at a standstill. Tourism, which was flourishing before the 1975/76 civil conflict in Lebanon, has dwindled and many hotels have had to close down."

Thousands homeless

IN ADDITION to economic difficulties, thousands of refugees have been made homeless by the attacks carried out in July. Among the 10,740 families registered with UNRWA in the five refugee camps of the Tyre and Sidon areas alone, the huts of 280 families have been destroyed by bombs. Another 530 huts were damaged during the same month.

Shells have also demolished the homes of refugees living outside the camp, including the apartments of two UNRWA staff members.

Emergency measures, including the distribution of kitchen kits, blankets and extra food rations to homeless families, were taken by UNRWA after a cease-fire was arranged in Lebanon on July 24.

Some families have left their homes in the south during the attacks, but there were no massive movements of refugees searching for safety further north as has happened in the past.

Today around 70 per cent of the registered refugee population remains in the small Al Buss camp, which is part of Tyre. The proportion of the population remaining in the other two refugee camps near the city is about 40 per cent at Rashidieh and 35 per cent at Burj al Shemali.

Mr. Gbassan Hajj is one of those who decided to stay in Burj al Shemali with his wife, his small sons and his grandmother. His parents have gone to Sidon. "I'm here", he says, "because it is better to be in my own house and because renting accommodation is terribly expensive. Of course, my children are frightened of the bombing."

Closed because of fighting

IN THE PRESENT circumstances, the relief services provided by UNRWA are specially important, but they have been hampered by the fighting. There was, for example, delay in the distribution of food rations to eligible refugees. More than one thousand tons of flour, sugar, and cooking oil are normally transported monthly to the Agency's distribution centres in towns and camps. Supplies could not be sent to the south for weeks because of the destruction of bridges across the Litani river.

The agency's operations in Lebanon were not complicated only in the south. For three months the town of Zahle in the Beqa' valley was blocked, and the transport of UNRWA supplies between Beirut and Tripoli was difficult. Fighting in Tripoli at the beginning of August further complicated the agency's operations in the north.

In the Beirut area the situation was marked from April onward by periodic clashes between various factions. Roads between the eastern and western parts of the Lebanese capital were closed by heavy firing and some UNRWA staff could not come to work. The Beirut UNRWA Polyclinic, which is just on the line between East and West Beirut, had to close.

A temporary medical unit was opened in the UNRWA area office in Beirut. As there is only one room available, pregnant women are examined and infants vaccinated at Burj al Barajneh clinic, in a refugee camp south of Beirut.

The main service provided by UNRWA to the refugees - 10 years of primary and lower secondary education - was also affected. Schooldays were lost in all areas because of the fighting, especially in the Beirut area, where the attendance of children was very low between April 2 and the summer holidays. Schools were to open 15 days earlier in Beirut area this schoolear in order to make up time lost.

UNRWA's education officer in Lebanon, Mr. Fouad Farah, explains: "We never closed any of our schools, but the attendance depended on the security situation."

The Sibilin Vocational Training Centre located in a comparatively safe area remained open, except during the Israeli attacks in July on targets in Lebanon.

OPEC ministers discuss unified oil price in long-distance talks

LONDON, Sept. 12 (R) — OPEC ministers have renewed consultations, mostly by long-distance telephone, in a bid to reach the agreement on a unified oil price which evaded them in talks in Geneva last month, well-placed OPEC sources said today.

Trade press reports said several key ministers were to meet secretary in London yesterday. But in London, the Kuwaiti and Libyan ministers failed to confirm this.

Sheikh Ali Khalifa Al Sabah of Kuwait told Reuters yesterday he was in London on business connected with the Kuwait National Petroleum Company.

Abdusalaam Zagar of Libya said he was on a private visit and had no comment to make.

Sheikh Ali would not rule out the possibility of a special meeting of the 13-nation OPEC (the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries) at any time before the next scheduled session on Dec. 10.

Meanwhile, several OPEC ministers expressed new alarm about the present world oil glut. Tayeb Abdul Karim of Iraq was quoted today in the Kuwait newspaper Al Rai Al Aam as saying it was "a dangerous phenomenon threatening the unity and existence of OPEC."

A unified price would ease the problem. At present Saudi Arabia charges only $32 a barrel and can still find buyers for a huge volume, just over nine million barrels a day (b/d) or nearly half of all OPEC output.

Most of the other 12 OPEC exporters charge more, up to Libya's $40, and many have been hit hard by the present glut. A slump in world oil demand has been followed by a buyer revolt against the higher prices.

The Saudis want the higher quotes cut in a unified price structure. Militants argued in Geneva last month that the Saudis should raise their low price to at least $35.

but Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani refused to agree.

OPEC sources said the present consultations are aimed at reaching a compromise. They added that if a deal can be struck, OPEC might meet in extraordinary session ahead of its next scheduled conference in Abu Dhabi.

But the sources said that Saudi Arabia was unlikely to agree to a special meeting unless it was sure a prior deal had been reached with acceptance of an agreed price for its own oil, the traditional benchmark, and a ceiling for top grades two or three dollars higher.

Saudi Arabia has pledged to cut its output to protect its present $32 floor price. This means that although top quotes are being forced down, a wholesale price crash is unlikely.

But Sheikh Yamani, who has a strong hand in the OPEC bargaining, has also said no deal should increase the average oil price, which he wants frozen for at least 18 months.

The Saudi minister is to address an oil seminar at Oxford, England, next week. Gulf sources said he was already in Britain, although reporters could not contact him.

The current OPEC president, Oil Minister Subroto of Indonesia, is also due to attend the seminar. He told reporters in Jakarta today he welcomed moves for an early OPEC meeting.

Press reports said the ministers of Kuwait and four countries which have held out against price reductions — Algeria, Libya, Iraq and Venezuela — were to meet in London yesterday. But a Reuters correspondent contacted Venezuela's Humberto Calderon Berti by telephone in Mexico yesterday.

OPEC sources said ministers had mostly been keeping in touch by telephone although the Kuwaiti minister saw Sheikh Yamani in Saudi Arabia last week.

Japan to mix oil, coal to generate electricity

TOKYO, Sept. 12 (R) — Japanese power stations are to start using a fuel made from coal and oil as part of efforts to lessen the country's heavy dependence on oil, an electricity generating company said today.

The Tokyo electric power company, one of Japan's 10 power companies, said it would convert two oil-burning plants at Yokosuka to use a coal-oil mixture called COM in 1984 and 1985.

It said the new fuel would reduce fuel oil consumption at the plants by about a third, or 1.86 million barrels a year.

The power stations would have anti-pollution equipment to remove sulphur and dust.

The company said the new fuel was as easy as oil to transport and store and had been developed by the semi-official Electric Power Development Company (EPDC) at its COM pilot plant in Hiroshima.

An EPDC spokesman told Reuters that COM was a mixture of oil and pulverised steaming coal in a 50-50 weight ratio, as well as a chemical to prevent the fuel from solidifying and the pulverised coal from settling.

He refused to give further details of the chemical.

The fuel will be produced at Onahama, in northern Japan, by the Japan COM Company, a joint venture of the two power companies and five other firms.

A spokesman for Japan COM told Reuters that the plant would initially produce 900,000 tonnes of COM a year.

The world's first COM tanker with a loading capacity of 5,000 to 10,000 tonnes would be built to ship the fuel to Yokosuka, he said.

He said Japan COM planned to produce five million tonnes a year by 1988 and it expected other power plants to use the fuel in the future.

Israel to aid its ailing diamond industry

JERUSALEM, Sept. 12 (R) — The Israeli government together with a number of banks and the diamond manufacturers association will set up a multi-million dollar credit fund to aid the nation's ailing diamond industry.

Representatives of the commerce and industry ministry, the Bank of Israel and the manufacturers told reporters that the new fund would provide guarantees worth millions of dollars to diamond merchants who at present could not raise enough credit to prepare diamonds for sale.

Merchants would also receive credit at reduced rates.

Details of the new fund as well as further steps to help the industry would be worked out in the near future, the representatives said.

The move followed a memorandum submitted to the commerce and industry ministry by diamond merchants who said they might have to close down the industry, one of Israel's principal exporters, unless they received financial assistance.

A diamond manufacturers' representative said the Israelis had been badly hit by the worldwide slump in gem sales.

He said the sharp drop in the value of European currencies against the U.S. dollar had caused a rise in the price of Israeli diamonds, which are sold on a dollar basis.

The fall in value of the Belgian franc had made it impossible for the Israeli industry to compete with one of its chief competitors, he said.

The Israeli merchants are asking for an adjustment in the rate of exchange to reflect the premium gained by the Belgians over the Israelis.

Why airborne access to Berlin is a fragile proposition

By Roger Boyes

In the cut-throat world of airline competition, cries of "foul" are often heard when one company feels it has been victim of a possibly-biased government ruling favouring a rival.

Just such a cry has come from Air Berlin, a tiny U.S. airline trying to break into the exclusive system of scheduled air routes linking West Germany with Berlin.

The objection centres on the rejection of its application to operate a scheduled service between Frankfurt and Berlin in the U.S., Britain, the Soviet Union and, to a lesser extent, France — may operate services linking Germany's larger cities with a divided and isolated former capital of the Reich.

In the case of West Germany, from which the Soviet Union is excluded, this has meant the routes have been dominated by British Airways and Pan Am, with token services by Air France, to the virtual exclusion of other competition. Under the post-war four-power agreement set up to protect air access to Berlin, not even German airlines such as Lufthansa are allowed to operate.

Since the routes operate over Soviet airspace, Soviet Government approval is required. This permits low-level commercial flights from West Germany over three narrow corridors linking Berlin with Hamburg, Hanover and Frankfurt.

Flights from other parts of Germany or overseas must be directed along one of those three corridors. Air Berlin's set-back has highlighted the political and commercial vulnerability of West Berlin and touches at the root of East-West relations.

The crucial criterion for IGS is the security and reliability of service: can airlines working the Berlin routes guarantee they will not suddenly stop, thus endangering Western air access to West Berlin?

Air Berlin, a subsidiary of Leco of Oregon, argues that if the number of flights to Berlin is increased, the security of the city is increased. If, as Air Berlin has proposed, significantly cheaper fares are offered, the population of Berlin benefits.

Pan Am and British Airways — in reports to the allied civil air attaches in Bonn — maintained that to allow Air Berlin to operate a scheduled Berlin route would unleash a fare-cutting war and perhaps force them to reduce services. This would harm the security of access to Berlin. Both carriers offer cheap fares and the routes are not thought to be profitable although they are subsidised.

The allied Governments appear to have agreed with the arguments put forward by the two.

In a rejection letter to Mr. John MacDonald, president of Air Berlin, the U.S. air attaché wrote: "The three powers and the Government of the Federal Republic of Germany support the value of competition in principle. However ... the attaches note that any carrier on the Inner German Services must demonstrate a credible commitment to maintain stable services in bad times as well as good."

This phrasing echoes that used in the two reports by Pan Am and British Airways. This similarity has reinforced the belief of some Air Berlin executives that the

U.N. code stuck with bureaucracy

GENEVA, Sept. 12 (R) — The completion of a United Nations code on the conduct of multinational companies is being held up by problems over government takeovers and compensation, the chairman of a U.N. commission has said. Indian diplomat N.K. Sen Gupta told a news conference that more than 50 of the code's 70 articles had been agreed by the U.N. commission on transnational corporations in a two-week session which ended today. He said further work had to be done on whether a government has the right to nationalise a transnational and what compensation it should pay before a final draft of the voluntary code could be presented to the next meeting in Manila in a year's time.

EEC boosts foreign aid

PARIS, Sept. 12 (R) — The 10 European Common Market countries have agreed to boost their aid contributions to the world's poorest nations to 0.15 per cent of their Gross National Product (GNP) at a U.N. conference here, conference sources said. No deadline was set for the increase but details of the agreement would be presented at the closing session of the United Nations conference on least developed countries on Monday, the sources added. The plenary session of the two-week conference ended yesterday in apparent deadlock over the aid increases with major industrial nations such as the U.S., West Germany and Britain failing to agree on the 0.15 per cent objective proposed by the Group of 77, a block of developing countries at the U.N.

Riots erupt as New Zealand beats Springboks

AKLAND, New Zealand, Sept. 12 (R) — New Zealand snatched victory over South Africa four minutes into injury time in the third Rugby Union international here today after the teams had braved row-flying aircraft hail of flour bombs, smoke bombs and anti-apartheid leaflets.

Violent battles between police and riot-throwing demonstrators appeared the worst rioting in New Zealand's history today in the South African rugby match of the country to a bloody rout. Throughout the tour, thousands of New Zealanders protesting the South Africa's apartheid policy have staged demonstrations in an attempt to bring the African visit to a halt. At least 45 people were taken to hospital and 148 arrested after riotous demonstrators carrying a tried to break through police lines and stop the final match of the tour, police said.

Robert Walton, said he believed it was the worst street violence in the history of this normally placid country. Other New Zealanders also called the riots unprecedented.

After the clashes in Auckland's residential streets, some demonstrators lay bleeding or semi-conscious in driveways or on pavements. A doctor said some had serious injuries, including internal damage. Protest leaders said police had unnecessarily attacked demonstrators, but Mr. Walton said his men had done a magnificent job. "We took a pounding but upheld the rule of law," he said.

A man and a woman protester who were dressed as clowns were caught in one police charge and left lying on the ground. They were taken away by ambulance after a supporting brace had been placed around the woman's neck.

One New Zealand player was felled by a flour bomb but was apparently unhurt. The two people who flew over the stadium during the game were arrested after landing. A policeman with a serious eye injury was lifted out of the stadium by helicopter during the match. Other policemen suffered broken bones and one lost part of a finger, police said.

Caesars Palace to witness boxing battle of speed vs. power

LAS VEGAS, Nevada, Sept. 12 (R) — It will be a battle between Sugar Ray Leonard's quickness and guile and Thomas Hearns' height and power in Wednesday's undisputed World Welterweight Championship bout at Caesars Palace here.

Not since Muhammad Ali met Joe Frazier for the first time more than 10 years ago has a bout featuring fighters of such talent and such divergent styles generated as much anticipation as this multi-million-dollar extravaganza.

Leonard, the World Boxing Council (WBC) champion, was a 7-5 on favourite over Hearns, the World Boxing Association's (WBA) welterweight king, as late as Wednesday, but now Las Vegas oddsmakers have made it a dead even fight.

Hearns, a 22-year-old from Detroit. "He'll find that difficult." "The key will be Ray's quickness, which will offset Hearns' left," said Angelo Dundee, Leonard's trainer.

Leonard agreed, saying: "My quickness and mobility will outfluff Hearns."

Hearns enters the bout unbeaten in 32 fights, 30 of which he won inside the distance. Most of the knockouts were executed with his right, set up by a left jab.

At six feet one inch (1.85 metres), he is three inches (seven centimetres) taller than Leonard. His reach of 78 1/2 inches (1.99 metres), extraordinary for a welterweight, is four and a half inches (11 centimetres) longer than Leonard's.

"I've got the tools," said Hearns. "If he sticks and moves I'll cut off the ring. If he's just standing or coming to me he'll be in even bigger trouble. Either way, I won't have any trouble hitting him."

"We reached an excellent spade contract in quick time. A heart was led and I ruffed the jack, which lost to the king. Back came a diamond, and the finesse of the ace lost to the queen.
